OWL Hires Industry Veteran as Director of Export Carrier Relations

Lake Success, New York – Ocean World Lines (OWL), a global, single source NVOCC (non-vessel operating common carrier), announced today that it has hired industry veteran Gary Ferrulli, as director of export carrier relations, effective immediately.

In his new position, Ferrulli and his department oversee all ocean service contracts from the United States, including negotiating with carriers to ensure that OWL's customers have access to competitive rates, carrier's equipment and vessel space. The Export Carrier Relations department also liaises with OWL's offices worldwide on rate proposals and global issues impacting ocean rates and contracts.

Ferrulli comes to OWL with more than 30 years of industry experience. For the past 11 years, he was a private consultant specializing in international logistics and transportation. In this capacity, Ferrulli worked with a wide variety of companies, including a global auto parts manufacturer, a large US-based retail chain, international and domestic 3PLs, and numerous venture capital firms and the Transportation Security Agency. In addition, Ferrulli has written monthly columns in the Journal of Commerce for more than six years and is a frequent guest speaker at industry events. He was the only commercial speaker and presenter at the US/Japan Maritime Agreement meetings in Tokyo, Japan.

He began his career at Sea-Land Services and later joined AP-Moller Maersk Line in the USA and Copenhagen, Denmark, as director of pricing and conferences for container services. He rejoined Sea-Land at the company's corporate headquarters in New Jersey and spent twenty years in various management and executive roles, including vice president of marketing (Americas) and vice president-North America (Americas). He also served in executive management roles at the National Shipping Company of Saudi Arabia.

Ferrulli reports to Dan Gardner, OWL's CEO. "Gary brings upwards of 30 years of carrier-specific experience to OWL, with a keen ability to focus on both macro and microeconomic market trends," says Gardner. "It became very clear to us from the beginning that he was not only knowledgeable, but very well thought of in the industry from the carrier and customer side of the equation. We are delighted to have him on-board and are anxious to utilize Gary's multi-faceted skill sets to the benefit of our customers, employees, shareholders and vendors."

Gardner said Ferrulli will be playing a major role in OWL's mission to help U.S. companies compete in the global economy with his expertise in export rates and contracts. "Since receiving the President's 'E' Award last month for export service excellence by the U.S. Department of Commerce, we have had an increase in inquiries from US companies and manufacturers looking to expand their business and Gary is the perfect addition to our team," noted Gardner.
